

Memory Is an Animal, It Barks with Many Mouths

Original title: Memory Is an Animal, It Barks with Many Mouths

In this creative documentary, children living in the valleys of the Dolomite mountains reimagine local legends in Ladin, the protected Rhaeto-Romanic language of the region. At the same time, they explore bodies of water, holes, caves and passages looking for something lost or forgotten. Through a poetic choreography, the film becomes a fictional journey creating resonances between the landscape, magical thinking and Ladin. A puzzle unfolds as a timeless fable.
